

Jeff Allison

Biography

Jeff Allison is the director of government and external relations for the International Association of Campus Law Enforcement Administrators (IACLEA). In this role, he serves as the primary liaison between IACLEA and federal agencies, Congress and national associations of higher education that address campus public safety. Jeff was recently appointed to the Office of Community Oriented Policing Services National School Safety Consortium, and he represents campus law enforcement and public safety on the Attorney General's Law Enforcement Working Group.

From 2004 to 2015, Jeff served as the FBI Special Adviser for Campus Public Safety, a headquarters position which supported the efforts of campus public safety agencies to prevent and control crime, including terrorism. The FBI nominated Jeff for the Service to America Medal for his work to enhance campus public safety across the nation.

Jeff began his federal career in 1985 as a police trainer for the U.S. Department of Justice (DOJ). During his tenure at DOJ, Jeff served as the director of the Police Corps, a national college scholarship and police training program. In the immediate aftermath of the 9/11 attacks, Jeff was dispatched by the Assistant Attorney General to New York City to coordinate federal assistance for the families of the police officers and fire fighters killed at Ground Zero.

Prior to joining the DOJ, Jeff served as a Maryland State Trooper and as a field training officer and detective with the Aurora, Colorado Police Department. Jeff earned a bachelor's degree from the University of Maryland and a master's degree in Criminal Justice from Michigan State University.

Jeff is married with two daughters and a son.